"I am very excited to be joining the British Endodontic Society Regional Meeting this November in Birmingham. I will be speaking about endodontic management of dental trauma both short and long-term complications affecting the pulp and the periodontal tissues.

Hear from Dr Nestor Tzimpoulas this November

'Picking up the pieces after the Peaky Blinders – Managing the consequences of dental trauma (immediate and late)'

Dr Nestor Tzimpoulas, an endodontist from Athens, is set to present the session at the British Endodontic Society's (BES) Regional Meeting in November. He describes what delegates can expect from his session:

"We will cover key topics like vital pulp treatments in acute trauma, pulp canal obliteration, necrotic immature teeth, and major types of root resorptions. I will discuss with you several clinical cases and videos, and I will also share the latest guidelines and evidence-based strategies that will help you feel more confident in handling dental trauma."
